DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 3/9/2009 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

3. Claims 6-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Shimose (US 6,203,918).

4. Shimose discloses a laminate comprising a stainless steel base layer coated with polyimide layers and an electrical conductor layer (abstract). Wherein the polyimide layer reads on the claimed heat resistant adhesive, the electrolytic copper foil reads on the claimed metallic foil and the stainless steel base layer reads on the claimed film-like protective material.

5. The laminate is formed by contact-bonding the layers in a vacuum press at 330°C (example 1). It is clear that during the contact-bonding in the vacuum press, the stainless steel base layer is disposed between the metallic foil and the pressurized surface via the polyimide layers; thus the stainless steel base layer reads on the claimed film-like protective material.

6. Shimose exemplifies a polyimide layer having a linear expansion coefficient of 22 ppm/°C, the electrical conductor layer is an electrolytic copper foil (which is recognized in the art as having a linear expansion coefficient of 18 ppm/°C) and the stainless steel base layer has a linear expansion coefficient 18.6 ppm/ $^{\circ}$ C (example 1). Thus, the claimed coefficients of linear expansion in Shimose meets the claimed range of  $\alpha_0 \pm 10$ , specifically, the polyimide layer has a coefficient of linear expansion of  $\alpha_0 + 4$ , and the protective material has a coefficient of linear expansion of  $\alpha_0 + 0.6$ .

7. In reference to the claimed dimensional change, Shimose discloses that upon etching "practically no deflection occurred." Additionally, since the prior art teaches the identical chemical compounds comprising the adhesive layer, metallic foil layer, and the protective material layer, the properties (heat resistance and dimensional change) applicant discloses and/or claims are necessarily present. In re Spada, 911 F.2d 705, 709, 15 USPQ2d 1655, 1658 (Fed. Cir. 1990). The burden shifts to the applicant to show an unobvious difference. Note that because the reference does not expressly address the properties of the claimed invention, does not mean that the properties are not inherently disclosed. Teaching the same compound(s) inherently discloses the corresponding properties. The references cannot possibly address all of the properties, but implicitly all of the properties are present.

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
